2 Dogs Are Members Of City Police Force

The Atlanta police department is not going to the dogs—the dogs are going to the Atlanta police department.
For there are a couple of mutts that walk beats on the morning watch—or maybe it's the "dog watch"—with two members of the department.

Eli Shonbrun Confesses in Webb Trial

By AMY PORTER.

NEW YORK, May 25.—(AP)—Eli Shonbrun confessed to murder today—to save his sweetheart, Madeline Webb, from a possible death penalty.

A slight, pale, unheroic-looking figure, Shonbrun made a valiant attempt to convince a jury that he and his uncle, Murray Hirsch, were solely responsible for the robbery-slaying of Mrs. Susan Flora Reich, wealthy Polish refugee, in a Hotel Sutton suite on March 4.

"Murray and I murdered the woman entirely alone," he yelled from the witness stand while Miss Webb sobbed convulsively.

Shonbrun is charged along with Miss Webb and her friend, John D. Cullen, with first degree murder in the killing of Mrs. Reich.

The uncle, Hirsch, also is under a murder indictment for the same crime, but has been granted a separate trial to enable him to appear as the state's chief witness against the three defendants.

"Murray and I were in that room alone," said Shonbrun. "I had sent Madeline away. She didn't know a thing about it."

Hirsch had arranged for somebody—not Madeline Webb—to telephone the bejeweled Mrs. Reich and invite her to the hotel at 1 p. m. on March 4, Shonbrun insisted.

"Madeline left at noon. I know the time because the radio was playing. Mrs. Reich came a little after 1 o'clock."

"I invited her in and told her Madeline was ill and had gone out to see a doctor."

"I waited for her to take off her gloves, and then I admired her ring. I told her I was a jeweler and asked her to let me see her ring. She said she couldn't get it off, and I said, 'Don't you want to use some soap and water?'"

Mrs. Reich began to be suspicious then, Shonbrun testified. She got up, saying she would wait down in the hotel lobby until Madeline returned.

"Murray struck her and knocked her back in her chair," said Shonbrun.

The dogs are "Patrolman" Frank and "Patrolwoman" Queenie.

Frank and Queenie are not German shepherd dogs, the variety generally known as police dogs; they are just plain dogs. But you can take the words of Patrolmen J. B. Peavy and J. L. Hughes these dogs really know the ropes when it comes to policing.

Both Peavy and Hughes are at a loss to explain where these canine "buds" got their yen to be coppers. They think that maybe sometime, way back yonder at some stage of canine adolescence the dogs were befriended by someone in police uniform and they take this as a means of showing their gratitude.

Punctual, Loyal.
Come rain, sleet, snow or any other manifestation of elemental fury, the dogs show up on their "beats," and there they stay until their policemen friends check off for the night.

Hughes says his "partner," Queenie, belongs to someone on his beat, which is on Decatur street, down below Five Points, but he doesn't know just who it is. He doesn't remember, either, when Queenie started working with him, but says it's been a long time ago.

"We get along fine," he said, "because Queenie makes no demands on me and I enjoy her company. I do have a little trouble keeping her from biting people we meet on the street," Hughes confessed, "but outside of that she's a perfect officer of the law."

Reports to Station.
On nights when Hughes is off Queenie, unable to find him on the beat, reports to headquarters. After looking around the station house and inspecting all occupants, she becomes satisfied he is among the absentees and then curls up for a good night's sleep. Queenie won't walk the beat with anyone else.

The contrary is true in the case of Frank, "partner" of Patrolman Peavy, on the Peters street beat. Frank will work with anyone who shows up and he is the special delight of a policeman new to the beat.

Frank has been on the "beat" since he was a pup. He and Queenie have no badges nor have they ever been sworn in as authorized officers of the law, but you'll never see a policeman without them.

Peavy and Hughes are not first-class policemen as well as first-class friends.

NAZIS OPEN SURPRISE ATTACK WITH MASSED PLANES, TANKS

Russians Shelled By Heavy Artillery South of Kharkov

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
MOSCOW, Tuesday, May 26.—The Germans have launched a massive surprise attack on the Izyum-Barvenkova front south of Kharkov with 150 tanks spearheading the assault under an umbrella of Nazi planes, frontline dispatches reported early today.

The Germans also hurled heavy artillery into the battle and the ferocity of the fighting mounted hourly, but Red armies were declared holding steadfastly to their positions.

On the Russian right and center Marshal Timoshenko's men were reported slowly moving forward upon Kharkov itself, but with his forces on the defensive about Izyum-Barvenkova the whole of the action stood in fateful balance.

Nazi Ships Sunk.
The Soviet night communiqué said merely that "in the Kharkov direction battles continued" yesterday and that especially violent fighting raged on the Izyum-Barvenkova front.

Pravda reported that Red naval fliers of the northern Soviet fleet sank two German destroyers and an 8,000-ton transport during the past few days. A third destroyer was listed as probably sunk.

On the front immediately before Kharkov, field dispatches reported that Marshal Timoshenko's resumed advance had progressed measurably, although only over the most violent and tenacious of German resistance, to overrun a number of German defense points, one an important center of resistance.

The counterattacks endlessly thrown in by Nazi Field Marshal von Bock meantime were being beaten off in the bloodiest struggles yet to be fought in the 14 days of the battle for Kharkov.

Fight Wild Crescendo.
All accounts received here agreed that the fighting had reached a wild crescendo, and these were supported by official descriptions of isolated but fairly typical actions.

In one of these, for example, German forces surrounded in a settlement fought on from every house and pillbox—some of the latter being buried Nazi tanks—until they were utterly smashed by Russian artillery and infantry fire.

The invader sought to supply his encircled troops with munitions and food dropped by parachute; his final effort was a futile

'Great Activity' Is Reported Off Brazilian Coast

RIO DE JANEIRO, May 25.—(AP) Brazilian authorities let it be known today that "there has been great activity" off their home coasts, and this cryptic generality was backed up by these rapid-fire developments:

1. "A North American patrol plane" battled and sank a submarine off the northeast coast of Brazil on May 23. The patrol plane apparently surprised the submarine and went immediately to the attack with a load of bombs. The submarine answered with cannon and machinegun fire, then tried to submerge, but three more planes joined in the battle and sent it to the bottom.

2. The Brazilian freighter Commandante Lyra was torpedoed 180 miles off the northeast coast of Brazil—the closest to home attack on a Brazilian ship. The ship survived and was towed to port with the aid of a United States patrol ship. Six other Brazilian ships have been sunk by Axis torpedoes since Brazil broke off relations with Germany, Italy and Japan.

3. Authorities at Recife awaited hourly the arrival of an Argentine ship carrying 53 survivors of a vessel torpedoed and sunk off the Brazilian coast. Rome radio has claimed the 53 survivors were members of the crew of a torpedoed United States battleship.

What measures the Brazilian government might take in retaliation against the encroaching Axis raiders remained secret, but the government is pushing defense

OPA To Crack Down On Fuel Chiselers

By LAMAR Q. BALL.

Gasoline rationing chiselers were threatened yesterday with a double bombardment from the OPA's heavy artillery in Georgia.

The warning was handed to dealers who are filling up tanks of favorite customers and tearing but one three-gallon coupon off the rationing ticket.

The warning, at the same time, went to gasoline buyers who patronize chiseling filling station operators and encourage those dealers to violate the rationing regulations.

Additional inspectors are being thrown into the field in Atlanta and Georgia to investigate "chiselers," it was announced yesterday by Oscar Strauss Jr., regional administrator of the OPA.

"This office intends to enforce every rationing regulation with the strictest supervision," said Strauss.

"Gasoline is certainly no exception in our enforcement orders."

"Extra inspectors are being assigned right now to investigate all stories of violations that are reaching us. The bootlegging of gasoline under our present setup is a most serious offense and we intend to see that none of the regulations is broken."

"This office wants the public to bear in mind that a person who buys 'bootlegged' gasoline is just as much an offender as the person who sells it. Both will feel the full force of the government's methods of dealing with such situations."

The Strauss warning was issued after Jimmy Robinson, president of the Georgia Association of Petroleum Retailers, had issued a statement condemning "certain filling station owners" for failing to live up to government regulations.

"The situation is so bad, it's too bad," said Robinson. "Very probably all of us could chisel and get by with it for a while, but I can't understand the underhand tactics of men who ought to know this rationing is our part today in

Stagger Plan To Solve Traffic Problem Ready

A staggered-hours plan calling for changes in working hours of 26,000 workers and the school hours of 22,000 students yesterday was offered by the Chamber of Commerce as a solution to Atlanta's wartime transportation difficulties.

In presenting the plan to increase by 20 per cent the rush-hour capacity of street cars, trackless trolleys and buses, H. Carl Wolf, president of the Chamber of Commerce, emphasized that the various interests affected will be consulted about feasibility of the shifts before any changes are made. The program would be put into effect on a voluntary basis, Wolf pointed out.

Only 18 per cent, or 26,000, of Atlanta's 140,000 persons employed in business and industry would be affected by shifts in their starting and quitting times, ranging from 15 minutes to an hour, Wolf said. Fifteen thousand workers would go to offices and business places 30 minutes earlier or later than usual, depending on the areas in which they work. Nine thousand would make 15-minute changes. Only 250 would make a full hour's shift.

A basic part of the program would affect school children, with junior and senior high schools opening at 9:45 o'clock, instead of 9:15, and closing half an hour later in the afternoon. This would free the morning peak load hours, because almost 5,000 students ride

Japs Are Repulsed At Walls of Kinhwa

CHUNGKING, Tuesday, May 26.—(AP)—Ten thousand Japanese attempted to storm Kinhwa, important military center in the east coast province of Chekiang, after a furious artillery barrage yesterday but stubborn Chinese machinegunners met them at the walls of the city, killed 1,000 and forced the rest to retire, a Central News dispatch said today.

The battle was described as the "first major Chinese victory since the start of the fighting" in the vital Chekiang province.

The Japanese approached the city from the northwest, east and southeast early in the morning as planes showered bombs on the city and a terrific artillery barrage was in progress. Some units of the Japanese reached the city's walls and were attempting to scale them when the main body of the advancing troops broke and retreated.

Rail Junction Bombed.
In Hunan province, the important railway junction of Hengyang was subjected to its fourth bombing attack in four days, 16 bombers raiding the center of the city and then flying north over Changsha.

The Japanese force in Chekiang province was estimated at 100,000. Kinhwa is the provincial capital and the most important Chinese communications center in the east.

The high command said Kinhwa was being attacked from all sides but the southwest, but declared the town still was in Chinese hands, and that a Japanese column which had seized Kientai, 28 miles to the north, had failed in an attempt to cross the Chekiang river.

More than 500 Japanese were drowned, the communiqué said, and Chinese dispatches said the column in its first attack north of Kienthai had been routed and 2,000 casualties inflicted.

Japanese columns were reported northeast and southeast of Kinhwa, while another force reached a point near Lanchi, only 12 miles northwest of the city.

(Tokyo newspaper reports declared the Japanese were "storming" into Kinhwa, but later Japanese broadcasts hinted that this may have

'Run Out of Burma,' Gen. Stilwell Admits

NEW DELHI, May 25.—(INS)—who will shortly return to China to resume active command of fighting units, pointed out: "The Japanese are getting stretched out pretty far like the snake in the Chinese legend which tried to swallow an elephant. They must guard against reaching the breaking point."

But as for the lost battle of Burma, the rugged Stilwell said: "I am not offering any alibi. We got a hell of a beating. We got run out of Burma."

"It's very humiliating. But we are going back in, when conditions permit, and we will take Burma back."

Burma, he added, "must be our point of re-entry into China," continuing: "It can be retaken somehow. I am certain we can do it. Burma is vital."

The general disclosed that additional bombers and fighters are being dispatched to Major General Lewis H. Brereton's Far Eastern United States air forces, based in India.

"It would also be nice to have some American troops for the Burma campaign," said Stilwell.

"The balance in Burma could have been tipped with only a little additional strength."

The general recounted some of the details of the harrowing 140-mile journey he and his party made—more than half of it by foot—across the jungles of the Naga hills into northeastern India. He had spurned the offer of an easy ride in a U. S. Army plane because he wished to remain with his troops as long as possible. But on May 4, after contact and communications between Chinese and British forces collapsed due to the withdrawal of the latter up the Irrawaddy river, Stilwell became convinced that the only thing to do was to seek the way out. He and his party, which included 19 Burmese nurses, began the arduous trek from Wuntho.

American planes from India sought the Stilwell party, but were never able to find it in the thick tropical foliage. The things that saved the soldiers, nurses

Hershey Sees Combat

Duty for Men 18, 19

BOSTON, May 25.—(AP)—Major General Lewis B. Hershey said today that youths in the 18 and 19-year age groups may be called for combat duty if the war continues.

The National Selective Service director added in an interview, however, that his division had made no formal request to congress to lower the draft age.

Under present law, youths of this age must register but there is no provision for drafting them into service.

Miller Tells Jury About His Ouster At Trial of Evans

W. Lint Miller, Lanier county farmer, barber and hardware dealer who was bodily ejected from his office as chairman of the State Highway Board by troops acting under orders of former Governor Rivers, took the stand yesterday in the trial of Dr. Hiram W. Evans on a charge of conspiring with Rivers and O. G. Glover, former state purchasing agent, to defraud the state.

J. G. Clover Loses In Supreme Court

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(AP)—The supreme court refused today to review the federal mail fraud conviction of J. G. Glover, former supervisor of road work done by convicts for the Georgia Highway Board.

Glover, under sentence to serve a year and a day in federal prison, appealed from the fifth federal circuit court.

The indictment charged Glover used the mails in connection with a scheme to have convict workers build houses on private property, using state materials.

Glover contended the conviction was obtained on "flimsy circumstantial evidence."

Rivers Payment Famed Rector To Belser Told Okays South's By Musgrove Choice Dishes

Former Secretary Testifies Here in Defense of John Greer Jr.

Downing Musgrove, Valdosta lawyer who served as executive secretary to former Governor Rivers, testified in federal court yesterday he saw Rivers in a downtown hotel room last January give Morgan Belser "upwards of $500" to pay for some real estate.

Musgrove, who took the stand in defense of John W. Greer Jr., former State Highway Department purchasing agent, charged with violation of anti-trust laws, was ostensibly referring to the property which the government holds Dr. Hiram W. Evans planned to present to Greer as a gift.

The defense is attempting to show Greer bought the land for Governor Rivers as a hideaway where he might escape the cares of his office.

"The Governor gave me a check for around $650 to $700 and asked me to get somebody in the hotel to okay it and get it cashed," Musgrove testified. He said he returned with the cash and Belser was given "upwards of $500 of it," the Governor took the remainder and he received a receipt from Belser which he turned over to the Governor.

Lewis, Murray Reported as Shaking Hands

Estranged Union Chiefs Meet Face to Face at Parley.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(AP)—John L. Lewis and Philip Murray, reported estranged, met face to face for the first time in months today and observed all the amenities of polite company as the policy committee of the United Mine Workers convened without untoward incident.

Although neither the miners' chieftain nor their vice president would personally confirm what happened behind closed doors, competent observers said Lewis offered Murray the floor and Murray, accepting, arose and extended his hand. Lewis took it and there was a rising applause. Murray, it was further reported, complimented Lewis in his speech for his "distinguished leadership."

Lewis, delivering the opening address, described himself as a "one-union man" since November, 1940, when he yielded the presidency of the CIO to Murray. He had pledged himself to resign if Wendell Willkie was not elected President. Lewis was understood to have added that the miners' union had no place for cliques or divisions caused or inspired by anyone's ambitions. Some individuals, some unions, and some nations cannot stand success, he was reported to have told the meeting. The miners' president said the union had reached the peak and intended to remain there. Saying he had been devoting himself exclusively to the one union, Lewis stated that he had made no public utterance this year, except for his suggestion last January for a resumption of peace efforts with the AFL. It was Murray's cool reception to that suggestion which had estranged them.

Grady Tribute Paid at Athens By T. W. Reed

92nd Birthday of Noted Georgian Is Observed at University.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. ATHENS, Ga., May 25.—T. W. Reed, veteran registrar of the university, addressed students in the Henry W. Grady School of Journalism here today in commemoration of the 92nd birthday, May 24, of Henry W. Grady, pioneer southern journalist and former editor of The Atlanta Constitution, for whom the School of Journalism is named.

Presided over by John E. Drewry, dean of the School of Journalism, the exercises were sponsored by the university chapters of Sigma Delta Chi and Theta Sigma Phi, national professional journalistic societies. Mr. Reed, also a former editor of the Athens Banner, was introduced by Beryl Sellers, of Fort Gaines, president of Sigma Delta Chi and editor of The Red and Black, campus newspaper. Betty Jane Horton, Anderson, S. C., president of Theta Sigma Phi, made the response.

Grady Employee. Mr. Reed, who was an employee of Grady on The Atlanta Constitution and who had the privilege of living in the Grady home, spoke of the famous editor from personal recollections as a "journalist, as an orator, as a statesman, as a constructive genius and as a man."

"The University of Georgia is proud that he bore from her halls the degree of bachelor of arts; the journalists of Georgia treasure the rich heritage he left in the wonders he wrought in the great profession he loved so well; the people of Georgia, the south and the nation gratefully acknowledge the debt due him for his magnificent contribution to their advancement and betterment in so many ways; the Henry W. Grady School of Journalism of the University of Georgia esteems itself rich beyond compare in the honored name it bears and in the opportunity to pass on from generation to generation the magic story of his life and achievements."

Taking pride in his association with Grady, the veteran registrar related "... that in those days of boyhood was my high privilege to enjoy the intimate acquaintance and cordial friendship of Henry W. Grady to live three years in the home of his beloved mother, to receive from him an inspiration that caused me to lift my eyes up to the mountain tops, to receive from her the loving care and motherly love that blossomed in unfading beauty in her heart of gold."

Mr. Grady had a strong constitution, and a determination to fight for right, explained Mr. Reed.

Word Picture. The former Constitution editor, though not "... a man of commanding physical appearance," often gained for the south the sympathetic ear of the nation. His vivid portrayal of the return of the Confederate soldiers to their homes after Appomattox delivered entirely impromptu in answer to Dr. T. DeWitt Talmadge's picture of the returning Union soldiers "... will forever remain as one of the gems of American oratory," Mr. Reed emphasized.

"Mr. Grady was essentially the friend of the down and out," declared Mr. Reed. "He attached little value to money beyond what he could use it for in helping the other fellow." He realized the fact "... that agriculture alone, no matter how rich or varied its resources, cannot establish or maintain a people's prosperity, and that no commonwealth ever came to greatness by producing only raw materials." He advocated over 65 years ago the diversified agriculture which we are just attaining.

WPA Making Survey on Bus And Rail Travel

Passengers at Terminal, Unions Stations To Be Interviewed.

Where are you going, my pretty maid? What is the purpose of your trip? How far is it and how often do you go there? If you had gas would you go in your car? If a perfectly strange young man pops those questions to you in a railroad or bus station, lady, use the old railroad crossing admonition, please, and stop, look and listen before you slap his impertinent face.

He is not being impertinent. He may not personally give a hoot, but he's doing a job for Uncle Sam and your answers may mean the difference between having railroad and bus travel rationed and being able to travel at will.

Eighteen young men and women interviewers, employed by the WPA, are spending a week at Terminal and Union stations and at the bus station interviewing passengers for the Office of Defense Transportation. They have been on the job since midnight Thursday and they will complete their survey tomorrow at midnight.

The survey is being made in 100 cities in the country and calls for getting a cross section of the train and bus travelers who are using the public carriers.

TRUSTEES TO MEET.

Grady hospital board of trustees will meet at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon at Grady hospital, Thomas K. Glenn, chairman, announced yesterday afternoon. Routine matters are slated for consideration, it was said.

'V-7' Opened to Married Men

Hundreds of young married men in the Atlanta area who are college graduates got a big break yesterday when the Navy authorized enlistment of married college graduates in Class V-7 for midshipman training leading to an ensign's commission, and duty with the fleet, Lieutenant Commander Harry F. Dobbs, of the Office of Naval Officer Procurement here, announced yesterday.

Heretofore, Commander Dobbs said, only single men could enlist for Class V-7 training.

According to the announcement, married or single men between ages of 19-27, inclusive, who are graduates of accredited colleges and universities, and who have credit for two semesters' work in college grade mathematics, and a course in trigonometry taken in prep school or college, are now eligible for enlistment as apprentice seamen, Class V-7, U. S. N. R.

After a month's indoctrination as apprentice seamen, the men will be appointed reserve midshipmen, and will then enter a three-month intensive training period upon successful completion of which, they will be commissioned as ensigns in the naval reserve for duty with the fleet.

Men who meet these general requirements should call at the office of Naval Officer Procurement at 721 Healey building at the earliest possible date, Commander Dobbs said, bringing with them their birth certificate, college transcript, and three letters of recommendation from responsible citizens on the writers' business stationery.

Deferment Plan For Breadwinners Under Consideration

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(AP)—A plan under which family breadwinners might be assured of draft deferments until the ranks of eligible men without dependents were exhausted was under consideration in congress today.

Senator Johnson, Democrat, Colorado, predicted that the Senate Military Committee would approve legislation tomorrow empowering President Roosevelt to alter the Selective Service System by classifying family men into separate groups, to be deferred until other men had been inducted.

This legislation, its backers thought, might help to relieve uncertainty in the minds of men with dependents, who now may be called into the Army in the discretion of local boards.

Senator Taft, Republican, Ohio, said many married men had complained they could not learn exactly what their status was under the present system; they asked they be given some concrete indication whether they would be inducted, so they could arrange for the care of their families.

He expressed the opinion that if the selective service were given the authority, it would promulgate general regulations, but would not make them iron-bound. For exam-

8 Per Cent Of Georgians Have X Cards

B-2 Group Is Largest Among State Autoists, OPA Says.

Eight per cent of the 180,950 automobile drivers of Georgia armed themselves with X cards allowing an unlimited supply of gasoline, a regional tabulation issued by OPA officials in Atlanta disclosed yesterday.

Zooming higher than any other group was the number of B-3 card holders, totaling 65,570 in Georgia, as compared to 82,982 who took A cards. Georgians getting B-1 cards totaled 18,423 and there are 18,983 holders of B-2 cards.

According to the OPA tabulation, which officials said was complete except for a scattering return here and there, Florida was the only state in the southeast holding a close check on the unlimited supply cards. Two per cent of the 521,975 drivers in Florida were allowed X cards. South Carolina and North Carolina gave 9 per cent of their drivers X cards, and Virginia, like Georgia, allowed 8 per cent of the applicants to walk out with the highest gasoline ration.

Japs Repulsed By Chinese at Kinkwa's Walls

been premature. A warding movement toward Kinkwa, 25 miles southeast of Kinkwa, was said to be under way, with the Chinese tenth army in full retreat.

(A correspondent of the newspaper Yomiuri on the Burma front claimed that the Japanese had jumped across the formidable cliff-lined Salween river, most dangerous obstacle to an advance up the Burma road, and thrown the defenders into confusion.)

5,000 Dead In 10 Days. Declaring the Japanese had left 5,000 dead on Chekiang battlefields in 10 days, the high command said it was employing "magnetic" warfare and that the main battle was now beginning with the Japanese lines far drawn out.

It told of spreading guerrilla warfare which raged along the northern tier of provinces bordering Chekiang and to the west. In one slashing offensive, it said, Chinese troops recaptured Sinteng, one the north bank of the Chientang and only 10 miles from Fuyang, one of the bases near Hangchow, from which the Japanese started their offensive May 15.

Numerous clashes of Chinese mobile columns with Japanese along the borders of Kiangsu and Anhwei provinces to the north and in Hupeh province to the northwest were announced.

Seeking to emulate the feat of the defenders of Changsha, Hunan province capital which the invaders have failed to take and hold in three major offensives, large bands of Chinese which were pushed aside in the Japanese rush toward Kinkwa began closing in on the enemy's communication lines, attacking his troop movements and supply columns.

Kengtung Menaced. The Chinese communique told of renewed bitter fighting in the two sections of the far southwest war theater.

In eastern Burma, south of the Burma Road, it indicated that, as a result of new Japanese attacks, Kengtung, perched in the hills between the Salween and Mekong rivers, was in a dangerous position. It said the battle was raging east, south and west of that Shan state capital 60 miles north of the Thailand frontier.

North of the Burma Road the Chinese reported continued progress in clearing the Japanese out of their mountain positions west of the Salween.

Chinese have stated that 150,000 Japanese troops have poured into Burma, however, and the Chinese press, repeating the cry of a few days ago, called for Allied aid to be rushed to China who, it was said, is fighting not only her own but the United Nations' battle.

Planes Need Fulton High's Ground Crews, Bell Reveals

'Extermination' Machines Ample, 'Aircobra's' Maker Says.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 25.—(AP)—"We are in the business of making airplanes and we are making airplanes of extermination," President Lawrence D. Bell of Bell Aircraft Corporation, said today.

Bell's problem, he said, is not a question of production—"which has already been settled satisfactorily"—but a need for experienced ground crews to keep the planes in condition to fly.

The Bell Aircobra, the most deadly ship manufactured for pursuit fighting, is now being flown to battle stations in various parts of the world. It is a fast, reliable ship, powered by a liquid-cooled engine, with a number of guns, including one cannon.

"What we need, now that the problem of plane production is settled, is enough men to keep the ships operating," Bell told correspondents on the National Association of Manufacturers' "production for victory" tour.

"An airplane pilot is a temperamental engineer who knows how to fly the ship, shoot the guns and bring her back to where she came from without anything missing. But the men we need—not only here but in other countries where our ships are flying—are ground crews which can see that the planes are properly filled with gasoline, tested for firing accuracy and which will not let our boys down when they get up in the air."

Women are becoming increasingly important in the airplane industry, Bell declared, because they are willing to accept work under almost any condition and "they have a greater desire to get the job done than men."

Bell disclosed for the first time that his Aircobras are being flown to their fighting stations. His ideas about war, as the curt, hard-spoken executive talked to correspondents, were boiled down to "we are likely to be exterminated and we've got to fight to live."

"We hope to win this war in 1942," Bell said, "but this is not a war of combat—it's a war of extermination. We are making the exterminating machines, we can keep on making them, but what we need are the ground crews to keep 'em flying."

Lieutenant Colonel William L. Kimball, resident representative of the Army air forces, headed a demonstration of target practice over water at Fort Niagara, N. Y. He fired a number of rounds from the plane's cannon, some of which did not hit the target.

Bell said later that it would be "highly desirable" if sufficient ammunition were allotted to his company to allow full firing tests of guns before the completed planes were turned over to the Army.

Speed Scrap Tin, WPB Urges South

To speed tooth paste and shaving cream trade-in tubes on their way to becoming implements of war, O. M. Jackson, deputy regional WPB director, yesterday urged immediate shipment of salvaged tin stocks from the southeast to the Tin Salvage Institute of Newark, N. J.

"The War Production Board will pay the freight," he said, "with supplies cut off by Japan, the armed services are in critical need of tin. Let's ship it from the south and ship it fast."

The Tin Salvage Institute was designated as the sole collection agent for the government to prevent losses of valuable metal which occur when junk dealers melt up tubes with other scrap, Jackson said.

Commercial Houses Asked To Help Employees Reach Polls.

Every business house in Atlanta—industrial or commercial, from the largest to the smallest—was urged yesterday to help get every registered voter to the polls tomorrow to cast his vote.

At a meeting in the directors' room of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday morning, Walter C. Hill, president of the Retail Credit Company, urged:

"Make the voting day more important than the business day." William J. Cordes, general attorney of the Retail Credit Company, presided over the meeting in his post as chairman of the local affairs committee of the Chamber of Commerce's governmental research bureau.

Committee Active. The 30-odd members of that committee had worked recently to induce Atlantans to register for the city election Wednesday and yesterday's meeting was to spark that committee in a drive to get everyone of the 41,457 qualified voters to the poll.

Group captains, appointed in the majority of the city's business and industrial organizations, have organized to arrange time off for each registered employee to cast his vote in the majority election tomorrow.

At the noon hour tomorrow, the group captains are being called on to check each employee to determine those who have not voted and to make arrangements so that employee can get to the polls during the afternoon.

"In our company," said Hill, "we never talk to the employee about whom he votes for. We strenuously urge each one to vote, regardless of how he votes and we see that our employees are given time to vote at whatever hour suits them best."

Transportation. Efforts are being made by the chamber committee to have transportation provided for those unable to get to the polls.

"The whole difficulty of our democratic setup," said T. K. Glenn, Atlanta banker, "is our inability to get people to vote. I believe everyone who does not vote should be penalized. Those who could vote and won't vote should be told, if they have ignored two or three elections, that their right of franchise will be taken away from them. I believe unless people are penalized for not voting, there'll be no improvement in the lamentable situation we have today."

a necessary national effort to back up soldiers on the firing line." Many dealers, said Robinson, are living up to literal interpretations of the regulations. But many are not. Those who are not are the crowd the OPA started after yesterday.

Promise was given Georgia gas and oil dealers every effort is being used right now to relieve the present "double ration" system.

"I am sure," said Robinson, "the government agencies will have that 'double ration' problem adjusted before June 1—not even waiting until July 1, when the permanent system goes into effect."

The so-called "double ration system" calls for only a 50 per cent allowance of gas and oil to each dealer against his volume of sales a year ago, while the individual purchaser is being cut down on his volume through the rationing cards.

Many small cities in Georgia are complaining many filling stations are closing up in their towns and those that remain are allowed only 50 per cent of their volume a year ago.

Fayetteville, Ga., was reported without any gasoline at all yesterday.

Georgia senators and congressmen are reported to be trying to get OPA in Washington to relieve this situation.

State Auditor B. E. Thrasher Jr. has complained many filling station operators are being swept out of business because of the "double ration system."

Georgian's Body Found in Lake

BENTON, Tenn., May 25.—(AP)—The body of a man identified from papers as John C. McNamara, 29, of McCaysville, Ga., was removed early today from an automobile submerged in the waters of Parkville Lake, near Ocoee Dam No. 1, about six miles from here.

The door of the car, spotted by a passerby as it lay a few feet beneath the surface, was open and investigating officers ordered a search to determine whether the man had a companion when the auto plunged into the water.

ATLANTA, GA., MAY 26, 1942.

Significant Decision

There is tremendous significance in the recent decision by the War Production Board to devote fullest endeavor, from now on, to production of war equipment and war material, rather than to construction of new plant facilities. Of course there will be some exceptions to this general rule, but the overall picture, from now on, will be one of production instead of construction.

This means that our days of preparation to fight, in the production field, are practically over. We are now ready and have begun the battle of the assembly lines, in dead earnest.

More than that, it means that our leaders are satisfied we can, with the present facilities, produce so fast that we can easily surpass the best the Axis can possibly achieve. The decision itself is an evidence of confidence in our immediate ability to decisively whip Hitler, Hirohito, Mussolini, combined, in the important race to put mechanized fighting armies in the field.

This same fact gives added credence to the belief we shall launch a new offensive in Europe this year. That is the much-discussed "second front." We would not be turning our all-out effort to production for immediate use, instead of to construction for future production; we would not be landing tens of thousands of our troops in Ireland, if we did not plan such an offensive.

Presupposing such an offensive will achieve at least sufficient success to take some of the pressure off the Russian armies and thus permit them to keep the offensive against Germany from the east, it is rather safe to predict that, while the war will not, in all probability, be over this year, the final defeat of the Axis will be so certain for 1943 that even the German and Japanese people will know that as fact.

Strength in the Air

If, as promised, the Allies will soon be able to send 1,000 bombers a day over Germany, day after day, it is quite possible that this air supremacy will be the deciding factor in the war. For, with such a force, they should be able to do what they have done to Luebeck to scores, hundreds of German industrial centers. Such smashing of the industrial heart of the Nazi war machine can only result in crippling the Nazi armies, in disrupting the German economies and communications and in shattering the morale of the German people.

Such a force could so pave the way for land invasion that no longer would it present an almost insurmountable problem.

The indications that complete mastery of the air from the west is either achieved or near are numerous. In the first place, while plane production is necessarily a military secret, it is well known that the United States is now turning out bombers which, both for quantity and quality, are stupendous. British production is said to be equally remarkable.

Add to this production achievement the fact that the empire training program for flyers, in Canada, has scored another outstanding war success and it is reasonable to believe that not only have the Allies the planes necessary for complete domination of the skies, but they also have the men to form their crews.

It may be the picture formed from these various indications is too optimistic. But none can deny there is a bright side to the important war news of the spring, as well as a dark.

If, as stated, we can use 1,000 bombers over Germany every day—there is ground for optimism.

Gasoline and Rubber

Perhaps Americans who are tempted to use more gasoline than they need, who are inclined, some of them, to complain about the rationing of automobile tires, would change their habits and attitude if they realized that the basic cause for their temporary inconvenience is the determination of American Army leaders to create the best panzer divisions in the world. They are inflexible in their purpose to have a mechanized army faster than anything possible to Hitler. Not only faster, but more powerful and less apt to break down in the stress of conflict.

Despite all claims of advocates of synthetic rubber, it remains an inescapable fact that real rubber is tougher, wears better and is altogether more desirable than any synthetic product. The Army wants its equipment on real rubber, in so far as possible.

Part of this determination is based upon confidential reports from the Russian front, which reveal the ersatz rubber of German wheels was one of the principal reasons why Hitler's legions didn't reach Moscow last year. Too much of their equipment broke down through failure of the ersatz rubber tires.

It is undeniably true that curtailment of gasoline strikes a serious blow at American peacetime economy. This nation's modern life is built upon the rubber used in transportation. That transportation cannot be drastically curtailed without serious impairment to the manner of life and the business of the country.

But, by all that is factual, this is war! We cannot expect to win such a war as we are now fighting without serious sacrifice for all of us. We must, simply, tighten the nation's economic belt to the last notch, must grin and accept any stringency the war imposes upon us. Undoubtedly there should be gasoline rationing on a nationwide basis. Not so much to save gasoline—which is plentiful in regions with adequate transportation systems—but to force a saving of rubber. No family should be allowed more than five tires, regardless of the number of cars it may possess. Careful planning of transportation can make one car do for many families.

It is quite possible it may be necessary to requisition several million cars, now privately owned, before 1943 is ended. Thousands now holding gasoline ration cards for greater amounts than they need will find themselves, whether they like it or not, placed in the "A" card class, after July 1. Gasoline rationing will be imposed on the entire nation.

It is going to be tough, tougher than we have, most of us, yet dreamed.

But the Army wants the rubber. And, when our sons and brothers, fathers and husbands are going out to face the most ruthless foe in all history—

Well, what the Army wants it must have. We are all, surely, agreed on that.

—WORK, SAVE, GIVE FOR VICTORY!—

Another Air Victory

North Americans, particularly those living in the United States, will be pleased to know this country's short wave radio is winning the battle of the air waves in Latin America. And why? The reason there, too, is a source of gratification, for it is simply something that has been part and parcel of our way of life and thinking ever since the country began to emerge as the greatest power on earth. And that is summed up in the word—quality.

The United States is winning this vital battle because it is offering better programs than the Nazi-Fascists. The peoples of the Latin-American countries prefer to listen to our broadcasts, rather than those of our enemies, on the sheer basis of quality, getting more for their time and money. Thus a fundamental factor around which is woven so much of the pattern of the average American's daily life comes to the fore at a time when we need to muster every ounce of resource at our command.

Encouraging too is the fact the American broadcasts of news rate highly with the peoples of the Latin-American nations. Many South Americans frankly tell visitors they will not believe words heard on the air unless the broadcast comes from the United States. In connection with these broadcasts of news and propaganda, it is interesting also to observe the Nazis spend more than $100,000,000 a year on this sort of thing. Yet simple quality, instead of quibbling, pays off with the listeners.

Georgia Editors Say:

OUR OWN WAR WORKERS

(From The West Point News.)

No big airplane factories in the Valley. No powder plants. No chemical industries. No assembly lines for the many types of war machines. No. But the Valley has its own defense workers right on.

They are the men and women who are engaged in the textile manufacturing business. Men and women working with cotton. Cotton, one of the most essential commodities in the whole war effort.

Cotton—in the wings of the planes that will deal death and destruction to the enemy; cotton—the power behind the bullets that will bring Hitler and his hellish legions to their knees; cotton—the clothing for the fighting men and their shelter; cotton—the coverings for the tanks and the bombers that will blast from the earth the last vestige of tyranny and oppression.

Next to the Valley's contribution to the armed forces of the nation, the men and women working in the local cotton mills are doing the biggest job in this section towards helping win the war. Let us not forget them when we are praising and paying tributes to the heroes on the home front.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

EXPERTS MYSTIFIED WASHINGTON, May 25.—Hitler's failure to attack in the Middle East and his long delay in starting a full-fledged Russian offensive, with the consequent gift of precious time to the Allies, has left the military experts frankly puzzled. There is something mysterious about it all.

What the mystery is no one professes to know, but competent observers say the answer should be forthcoming soon. It may be, qualified persons have suggested, that the Germans are planning a desperate attack in some new direction, outside of Russia.

Senator Walter F. George, past chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and one of the best informed men in congress on war events, believes that such an attack may be made on Iceland. There British and American forces have established a highly important outpost for the protection of the steady stream of supplies being sent to England and Russia. It would be vastly to Hitler's advantage to capture that vital position.

Although the matter has not been publicized, there is evidence enough that British and American authorities are anticipating an attack on Iceland. Recently we had the news that the principal city of the island, Reykjavik, was being evacuated of all women and children, who are being sent to safer points in the interior. That looks like we are expecting something.

One highly regarded foreign military expert on Washington's Embassy Row, who prefers that his name not be used, has recalled that the German high command has always boasted in the past that it would "dictate the rhythm of the war." Why then, he asks, has Germany delayed her big effort in Russia this year so long and allowed Soviet Marshal Timoshenko to get the jump around Kharkov?

SITUATION OUTLINED Like most military men, this observer is very cautious in his opinions, but he has outlined the situation as he sees it somewhat as follows: "For once," he said, "the Germans do not seem to be sure of themselves. In the past, they have managed to have only one front and one opponent; they have been able to prepare an attack carefully and conduct it skillfully. Today that is all changed. They appear to be uncertain.

"Why have the Germans been talking about an offensive in Russia this summer? It may be that their losses last year, and during the winter, were so great that they have had trouble preparing for a new offensive.

"On the other hand, it may be they are reluctant to play one big card by trying to knock out the Russians. There is now the menace of a new front in the west. The raids of the RAF, such as those on Rostock and Luckebeck, may have forced the Germans to call back much of the Luftwaffe from Russia. Actually, we don't know where the bulk of the German air force is.

FACTORS OF UNCERTAINTY "The visit of General Marshall to England, the damaging of the German warships that were expected to cut the Allied supply line to Murmansk—all these, you can be sure, have been taken into account by the Germans and have added to their uncertainty.

"But there is still something mysterious, something obscure, about the German situation. The Germans were saying last year that Yugoslavia and Greece delay their attack on Russia until June 22, thereby causing them to lose valuable time.

"Why, then, have they wasted valuable time this year? There are now only about four and a half months left for decisive action in Russia."

NOT WEATHER ALONE The weather, it was pointed out, is not a sufficient answer. In the first World War the Germans and Austrians launched a gigantic attack on the Russians in Galicia on May 1, 1915.

While admitting doing no more than speculate, the military attaché said there was a temptation to believe the Germans realize they are facing a catastrophe, but, he added, he refused to yield to that temptation.

It was pointed out that, although Germany's main forces will have to remain on the Russian front, there is nothing to prevent Hitler from launching an attack in some other direction. Such an attack, it is suggested, might well be brewing.

OUTLOOK FAVORABLE In the meantime, however, it can be said that the outlook, together with our own military experts, regards the outlook as favorable. Marshal Timoshenko's drive will cause the Germans plenty of difficulties. The continued RAF raids on Germany are vastly important, too. These raids, in fact, may be the real explanation of Germany's failure to do anything spectacular since spring arrived.

Nevertheless, it is expected the Germans will do something soon that will be of a desperate character. They are a very precise and careful people, as a rule, but history shows they are also capable of committing stupid blunders. Hitler's invasion of Russia is now revealed to have been a blunder of the first magnitude. When he declared war on us that was another of greater proportions, as we shall prove to him in the end.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

Shut-In's Day.

There is a man who lives in Marietta. I have spoken of him here before, but he is worthy of another column, even if it is in part repetition.

His name is Clarence E. Power and for many years he has been confined to his room by a painful and crippling illness. He is not a young man and many suffering from his handicaps in life would have at best resigned themselves to the inevitable and made no effort to improve their lot in life. At worst they would have become morose and miserable.

But not Clarence Power. His illness is of a type which makes it difficult to use his hands. Yet he has learned to operate a typewriter, and he has been able to establish a correspondence with other shut-ins that reaches all around the world and that has brought cheer and new interest to scores of people in similar circumstances.

Clarence Power has established, too, a business of his own. He sells greeting cards for all occasions. Not only for Christmas and New Year, but cards for birthdays, to send to the sick, cards of condolence to those bereaved, cards for Mother's Day and for Father's Day, for Valentine and a score of other occasions.

He has created, you see, interest in life for himself and for many, many others.

Another Interest. Not satisfied with this, however, Clarence Power launched a movement, some three or four years ago, to have one Sunday in each year set aside as an official "Shut-In's Day." A day on which every one should be urged and encouraged to visit the sick and the disabled, thus to bring extra cheer and fellowship into the lives of those who cannot mix in the normal social life of unhandicapped people.

For a long time, he had decided upon the third Sunday in June as the ideal day for his annual occasion. He wrote to organizations and to government officials. Many adopted resolutions of approval and many more sent letters of complete endorsement.

Then, quite recently, he discovered something. He discovered that Canada had already established an annual Shut-In's Day. On the first Sunday in each June.

So now, realizing it is best to have the observance uniform, Mr. Power is changing the day of his own movement to the first, instead of the third, Sunday in June. To conform with the Canadian day.

He hopes those organizations which have approved his plan for the third Sunday will find no difficulty in switching to the first Sunday.

He would like Georgia to sort of set the ball rolling with a proclamation from the Governor, setting the day aside. He has written requesting this, but so far has received no acknowledgment of his letter from Governor Talmadge.

He would like, of course, to gain national recognition from Washington and believes this will, ultimately, come.

We Can All Help. In the meantime, we can all help in this truly worthwhile movement.

We can help by observing the first Sunday in the way he asks, whether there is official proclamation or not. We all know some bed-ridden unfortunate who would appreciate a call from a friend.

We can take, or send, flowers. We can think of these unfortunate on that day and give humble thanks that we have been lucky in our own lives.

And, best of all, we can resolve to remember them more frequently and more kindly all through the year. It can make all the difference in life to such an one if there are a few friends to drop in, not infrequently, for a talk of an evening.

Think what it means to someone with none save radio and nurse for company, when a friend comes and sits by the bed and tells of those things going on in the active world that can't be learned from any radio.

A friend who will discuss, man to man, the progress of the war and the probable developments to come. A friend, even who will discuss and discuss politicians and administrations, in perfectly companionable way.

A friend, even, to quarrel with if opinions don't always agree.

I think Shut-In's Day is a great and fine suggestion and, if my tires and gasoline permit, will try to pay such a visit myself when I can.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today. From the news columns of Saturday, May 26, 1917:

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Must Be Groggy NEW YORK, May 25.—Our people must be politically groggy for for otherwise we surely would not have accepted without public protest the commutation of Earl Browder's prison sentence on the ground that his release would tend to promote national unity.

This was frank political appeasement of a group representing a foreign dictator which for almost two years had denounced the present war as a war of British imperialism and had sabotaged the effort to produce weapons and war vehicles for American soldiers by strikes in Milwaukee, Cleveland, Los Angeles and elsewhere. It is certain that American men will die for lack of the arms and planes whose production was obstructed by Browder's political following, which is now appeared in cynical contempt for the American concept of justice.

If it had been admitted that Browder was given an excessive sentence as punishment for his political views and actions, that explanation would have appealed to the national sense of justice. Certainly it would not have violated the American system.

Hand of Politics But such an admission would have amounted to a confession that Browder was a victim of New Deal political persecution because he was convicted and sentenced at a time when President Roosevelt was attacking President Hoover as a warmonger and the whole effort of the group was exerted to serve Adolf Hitler by obstructing our preparations to fight him in an inevitable war.

If he was not a political prisoner, then he should have remained in prison, but in no case could the cause of unity be given legitimate consideration in weighing his petition.

Aside from the dangerous cynicism of the stated reasons for Browder's release it should have warned an alert people that the sympathy of the New Deal for Communists is again at work in the government in Washington. They began to win back favor immediately after Hitler attacked Russia and within a year have made great progress. The Communist slogan "The Yanks aren't coming," was rewritten to read "The Yanks aren't coming too late," and the mere military fact that two countries are allies in war against a common enemy is permitted to justify their penetration of the governmental system.

Were In Doghouse Only a little while before Hitler struck Russia, the Communists were in the doghouse for opposing the rearmament program and many Communists and fellow-travelers of former times were insisting that they had seen the light and had reformed. Even Phil Murray, of the CIO, had joined in a demand that the government should be driven out of the unions and out of the country. The AFL busily attacked them in line with its propaganda against the CIO and loudly insisted that the rival organization was infested with them.

Now, the Communists are in the doghouse again, for they are accused as loyal brothers and comrades for the sake of that which the White House statement calls "unity," but in violation of all previous alarms in which they were viewed as enemies of the American form of government.

Browder is the boss Communist of them all in the United States, he served Moscow in China and in our midst. He was a member of an inmate of the GPU when one of its bureaus was forging American passports for its agents and manufacturing counterfeit American money so as to obtain currency to finance the first Soviet five-year plan. This record is one of consistent anti-Americanism promoted under the protection of American laws and citizenship which he constantly invoked to work for the destruction of his nation.

After Due Process But when he was finally convicted and sentenced after due process under the laws which he had so often invoked to keep out of jail, his following immediately raised a clamor for his release as a victim of political prejudice.

He either was or wasn't a victim of such prejudice and the White House statement dared not admit that he was a victim, for that would have meant that he was punished for opposing the administration which was then in power.

If he wasn't, he would have been kept in prison at least until he was eligible for parole.

Browder is the second member of his family to figure in a political abuse of the machinery of justice for political purposes.

He is turned loose prematurely out of consideration of his politics, and his wife, ordered deported by Robert Jackson, for political effect, shortly before the presidential election of 1940, is still in our midst and will remain here.

June Is Designated

National Dairy Month

June has been designated as National Dairy Month by the National Dairy Council in Washington and Columbus Roberts, of Columbus, designated as chairman for the Georgia observance.

The Governor yesterday signed an official proclamation designating June as National Dairy Month in Georgia and urging increased consumption of milk and butter.

Mayor Lyle added his support to the "Use More Milk" movement by an official proclamation urging Atlantans to consume more dairy products.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

"HERE FORMED—" HARVARD UNIVERSITY (By Mail).—In a corner of the Cambridge common there is a simple stone. On it one may read that on the spot the men of the Cambridge area formed, on the night of April 18, 1775, and marched from that spot to participate in the Battle of Lexington.

That was the running fight in the noon-day sun in which the shots were fired which, Mr. Ralph W. Emerson said, were heard around the world. They were.

I stood there in the dusk of a warm afternoon, with the grass smelling sweet after a shower, and tried to picture them.

They were, for the most part, farmers. There was a tavern keeper or so. (The American Revolution was made in the taverns.) There was a tradesman or so. But most of them were farmers.

One can think of them waiting there, greeting neighbors as they hurried up. Paul Revere, the copper and silversmith, was passing the word out from Boston. They knew that, Abraham Watson and Richard Drown, on the outskirts of Cambridge, had seen some British soldiers riding out into the night. Watson and Drown were returning from a meeting of "The Committee of Safety," in what is now Arlington, when they saw the British. They got back to the tavern and the word was sent. In Boston, 800 soldiers had been seen to fall in. Revere rowed across the river and started his ride. The lanterns were hung in the old North church.

History was about to be written. But that night, as the New World slept, and the Old World rolled into the light of the sun, no one worried about it. The German King of England slept well. One was concerned about the farmers walking through the night.

THAT NIGHT— I went inside the fence and stood there by the stone. I could imagine those men that night, April 18, 1775. They smelled of the fields and of barns and of milking. They talked, one may be sure, in whispers, hoarse with excitement.

There must have been a few women, hovering in the distance, fearful, afraid. Yet angry, too.

There undoubtedly was some fretting at some late farmer. But at last they all were there. They started out to walk the long 18 miles to Lexington. Their rifles were heavy. Their powder horns slapped and rattled at their hips.

One can picture them along the road, keeping an eye out for the British; being joined by neighbors along the way. One can follow them along that road and think of the sound of their feet; the barking of dogs at farmhouses; the challenging voices of those who joined them; the lights in farmhouse windows.

And the little towns that night there was activity. The roads and the fields came alive with the grim-faced, hard-bitten farmers, tradesmen.

They got to Lexington. They came in all morning. They were ordered to disperse. They fired instead, a daring, costly but courageous answer.

A few of them died. The British went back and said they had dispersed a mob.

But history picked up her pen and opened up a new book and began to write a book that is not finished yet, and please God, never will be finished.

A NEW SONG I stood there by the stone feeling a very great emotional surge and thinking about what Harvard professor, William Y. Elliott, talking to us at the Harvard Institute of War Problems, had said that day.

He had been talking about how our soldiers, sailors and marines were fighting. He told of how our few destroyers and cruisers, outnumbered and doomed, had gone into the Java sea battle with all their guns blazing and how most of them had gone down.

He told of how they were giving us the news in such small, sugar-coated doses.

"Great God," he said, "here this nation is with the greatest tradition in the world, and we go along letting Hitler sell the world and his people a tradition about a mythological lout named Siegfried."

"We've got to come alive about this war; as alive as the men are who are fighting it. We cannot go along reasoning about how sweetly we must treat our enemies at the peace table; about how we must not repeat mistakes; or questioning the gasoline rationing or complaining about a few small comforts which are missing.

"Where are our emotions, our songs? Why hasn't someone given us a song about ourselves, about our own tradition? If we don't come alive and realize that this is a desperate war, so far being won by those who hate and despise us, and who would enslave and destroy us, then we may lose it. It is not won yet. It is not even being begun to be won. All we have had so far is 'God Bless America.' And all the new songs have been just extra verses of it."

Well, he was angry. But right. The story of the Java sea and the men who went in with all their guns blazing, knowing they were going to almost sudden death, should have aroused this nation as it has never been aroused in its history. But we fumbled it and never felt it. Only those who got the telegrams beginning, "We regret to inform you..."

Standing there by the stone, I could feel the feet of the men marching that night and hear their voices. I could hear the scratch of History's pen as she began to write.

We can't let this chapter be one of failure.

Admit Competitors Who Live on a Dime and You Live on a Dime

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Since we were forced into this war, there has been much talk of racial equality. Realizing our need of all the friendship and cooperation we can win, our leaders have promised all races equality of freedom and opportunity after the war.

Standing there by the stone, I could feel the feet of the men marching that night and hear their voices. I could hear the scratch of History's pen as she began to write.

There are races that simply cannot compete on equal terms. For example, in Asiatic regions where competition was free, Chinese merchants and farmers and laborers always drove out the Japanese. The Japs won only where they were subsidized or supported by force.

Before you go any further, if you feel so inclined, I am warning you that this column will be far above my standard, because I'm stealing, grabbing and embezzling it from other sources.

It isn't often I do this, but it's such a swell afternoon and I have promised I'd go home early and wash the dog. You can't wash a dog after dark because he must run in the sun and get himself dried out.

As a torpedooed Marine, a swimmer in a tumultuous sea, spies a raft or a bit of wreckage upon which he may cling. I find upon my desk a copy of "Quote," a periodical published in Indianapolis. Reason I was sent the copy was because it quoted me—on something I probably stole from some unsung genius of the rural press.

Anyway—who the devil stole my shears and maulage?—let's see what we can find:

All This From 'Quote.'

Two Negroes were discussing their chances of being drafted. "Tain't gwine to do 'em no good to pick on me," said Sam, "cause I ain't gwine to do no fighting! Ah ain't lost nothin' in dem countries an' dey can't make me fight."

"Yo" may be right," replied Mose, "Uncle Sam can't make you all fight but he can take yo'

Thank the Lord For a Pastepot And Shears

where de fightin' is an den yo' use yo' own judgment."

A young matron of our acquaintance, taking first aid training, has reached the resuscitation stage. One evening recently, returning from a Red Cross meeting, she observed a man, on a darkened side street, sprawled face downward.

"Aha," thought the matron, "Providence has sent me hither to minister to this poor, unfortunate." Parking her car near by, she rushed over and began giving the treatment for resuscitation.

Presently the man stirred, looked up, and spoke with great difficulty: "Lady," he said, "I don't know what you're up to, but I wish you'd quit tickling me. I'm holding a lantern for a guy workin' down in this manhole."

Inscription on a monument in France marking the grave of an Army mule:

"In memory of Maggie, who in her time kicked two colonels, four majors, 10 captains, 24 lieutenants, 42 sergeants, 432 other ranks, and one Mills bomb."

Fair Enough

This is a floating story about two Irishmen who were all set to fight a duel with pistols. One was a big fellow and the other a little one.

"That isn't fair," said the big chap, "I'm twice as big a target as he is, so he ought to stand twice as far from me as I stand from him."

The seconds couldn't figure that out, but one of them had an idea. He measured the width of the little slim man and drew two chalk lines down the chest of the big fellow.

"Now remember," he admonished the slim chap, "Any shots that hit outside of them marks don't count."

School's out and the youngsters are at home. What to do? Take them to the mountains or the shore? How? Thin tires, little gas!

Let 'em go to the movies? How? Oh well, the street cars and buses are running. O. K., if you live close to a line.

End of school has temporarily solved a problem for many a parent who had to take them in the family car every morning and go get them in the afternoon.

I have an idea a lot of parents are going to get better acquainted with their children this summer than ever before. Which, perhaps, will be tough on the children.

MAYBE WE'RE BUILDING

EM—WE DON'T KNOW

Editor, Constitution: To win this war forced upon peace-loving America, to save lives, we need to utilize our ability to build machines quickly and efficiently. The advent of the aeroplane, along with the submarine and tank, has revolutionized warfare. One weapon we are neglecting. That is the PT boat. This boat carries four torpedoes, also depth bombs. It relies upon high speed, 50, 60, 70 miles per hour, and its maneuvering ability, to get in its blows and avoid being hit. Enough of these boats would destroy the submarine menace, and the possibility of invasion. General MacArthur has said if he had only 200 he could sweep the Japs from the seas. I don't know why we haven't them. I wrote over 100 letters to officials in Washington calling attention to the immense importance of developing this arm of the service.

Washington has so many ideas presented that no doubt it is a job to winnow the chaff, but it does seem like anyone could see that the PT boat was a trump card not to be ignored or handled half-heartedly.

Instead of cutting off our shirt-tails, we had better be building something to lick Hitler and the Japs.

B. W. MIDDLEBROOKS.

WE ARE CORRECTED

ON IMPORTANT DATE
Editor, Constitution: In your "Constitution Quiz" on Page 14 or today's issue of The Constitution, question No. 4 asks: "When did the first 10 amendments to the constitution go into effect?" The answer in another place on the same page says: 1781. This is incorrect.

The Bill of Rights, amendments 1 through 10 of the constitution of the United States, was drafted by James Madison and proposed and approved at the first session of congress and adopted by the required number of state legislatures under Article 5 of the constitution and was declared in force December 15, 1791.

These are most important dates in the history of our country and I do hope that you will make the proper correction by some kind of announcement.

I read the "Constitution Quiz" each day and enjoy it and know many others who do the same. It is interesting and informative and refreshing to the mind and especially educational to the young as well as refreshing to the older readers.

AMERICANISM.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, in the leading article of the June issue of the Watchman Magazine, under the title, "What Is Americanism?" makes some significant statements—a statement that are rather disturbing. For example:

"American democracy is on trial. America must face facts. America must realize that the legions of force are making tremendous sacrifices for an ideal—an ideal which aims to destroy everything we hold dear. The people of the United States, in defense of their homes and their beliefs, must unite with that singleness of purpose for which our fathers fought in 1776 and for which many of our brothers-in-arms died in 1917."

"From across the seas have come emissaries from totalitarian governments, seeking to undermine our nation and implant their doctrines. In spreading propaganda, these subversive forces have become more brazen. They have penetrated into every realm of decency, seeking allies in our schools, our churches, and our civic organizations. Ever on the alert to capitalize on popular trends, they have joined reform organizations and civil liberties groups, and have played dominant roles in some of the pacifist blocs. Wherever they go, they contaminate, because of the indifference and apathy of too many of our citizens. As a result, our America is at the crossroads."

"Designated by the President to head the nation's attack against foreign spies, saboteurs, and subverters, the FBI is proud of its close co-operation with citizens of character. As the present situation intensifies, it is only natural that we should depend increasingly upon your assistance."

"Intellectual freedom is American. Intellectual license and debauchery is un-American. In religious indignation it is time to drive the debauchers of America out into the open, where their true purposes may be revealed. American educational forces must come to grips in unified manner with the needs of the hour for the general purposes of stimulating the American people to renewed faith in democracy and a willingness to sacrifice in its defense."

These statements, I repeat, are significant and disturbing. Remember, it is the head of the FBI who is making these statements, and he makes them in the June, 1942, issue of one of our magazines. One could wish that Mr.

Hoover might be more specific in his reference to these enemies, and the response which they are receiving; but it is enough for a man of his official standing to make these general statements to arouse our renewed effort to combat these sinister efforts from without and from within. I have long believed that one of the gravest dangers to our country is the so-called "broad-mindedness" of so many of our people in taking into our schools, clubs, and even our churches, these smart saboteurs. We need to wake up.

SURVIVES TORPEDOING—J. W. Nesmith Jr., son of Mrs. J. W. Nesmith, 453 Boulevard, N. E., and radioman on the Alexander Hamilton during a recent voyage to Iceland, narrowly escaped with his life when the ship was torpedoed. He visited his mother in Atlanta recently.

Hoover might be more specific in his reference to these enemies, and the response which they are receiving; but it is enough for a man of his official standing to make these general statements to arouse our renewed effort to combat these sinister efforts from without and from within. I have long believed that one of the gravest dangers to our country is the so-called "broad-mindedness" of so many of our people in taking into our schools, clubs, and even our churches, these smart saboteurs. We need to wake up.

NEW YORK, May 25.—(AP)—

There were scattered modest advances in today's stock market, but trends generally were a shade lower.

Prices held to a fairly steady area at the start. Steels soon began to slip and bids for leaders elsewhere were withdrawn. It was a slight recession from then on and, at the close, declines of fractions to a point or so were in the majority.

Outstanding buying or selling incentives, brokers said, were lacking in the news budget. Conflicting Russian and Nazi claims in the fierce and long-drawn-out battle for Kharkov caused many customers to adjourn to neutral territory.

A trifle under water in the curb were Brewster Aero, Cities Service, Electric Bond & Share and International Petroleum. Minor gains were registered for American Cyanamid, Glen Alden Coal and American Light.

Rail roads declined broadly in a quiet bond market. Industrial and utility liens were steady.

Coca-Cola Co., Pepsi-Cola End Long Dispute

Row Over Trade-Mark Settled After British Court Decision.

NEW YORK, May 25.—(AP)—The Coca-Cola Company and the Pepsi-Cola Company, an official of the latter said today, have finally settled litigation over their trade marks, which have been in use in this country more than 39 years.

The official said settlement had been agreed upon following a decision by the judicial committee of the privy council, highest court in the British Empire, that the trade mark Pepsi-Cola did not infringe the trade mark Coca-Cola.

As a result of the decision, the official said, litigations pending throughout the world are to be dismissed without cost to either party.

The Pepsi-Cola official explained the dispute as follows: The Coca-Cola trade mark was registered with the United States patent office in 1888. That of Pepsi-Cola was registered there in 1903.

About four years ago Coca-Cola Company, Ltd., began suit in Canada on the ground its trade mark was being infringed by that of Pepsi-Cola Company, Ltd., and won a decision which was appealed to the empire court, resulting in the privy council ruling last March 19 in favor of Pepsi-Cola.

Meanwhile a similar suit was brought in Queens court, New York, by Coca-Cola although this has not been brought to trial.

Meanwhile Pepsi-Cola attempts to have its trade mark registered in a number of Central and South American countries were opposed by Coca-Cola.

SISSON TO GO ON TRIAL.

Raymond L. Sisson, pardoned slayer, charged with five counts of robbery and burglary, is scheduled to go on trial today before Judge Paul S. Etheridge, of Fulton superior court.

Stagger Traffic Plan Is Ready

trolleys and buses, it was pointed out.

Cut Peak Loads. Use of the staggered-hours plan would mean tremendous decreases in rush-hour loads, proponents pointed out. For instance, the program proposes to cut the afternoon 5 o'clock peak from 25,000 to 15,000, the morning 8:30 o'clock peak from 20,330 to 10,200, 8 o'clock from 13,300 to 11,900, 9 o'clock from 13,500 to 9,000 and afternoon 5:30 o'clock from 12,700 to 10,100.

Information from three chief sources formed the groundwork upon which the plan was based. The recent cordon count made a month ago before gasoline rationing by the Boy Scouts furnished complete figures on the number of automobiles, passengers, trucks and pedestrians entering and leaving the downtown section between 7 a. m. and 7 p. m.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Red Cross Women's Motor Corps recently made a survey of 1,300 Atlanta business and industrial concerns to determine how many workers they employ and at what hours they start and quit work.

Data Compiled. Transportation engineers of the Georgia Power Company compiled data on the increasing number of public transit riders and the overcrowding of rush-hour service.

Conservative estimates of war demands on public transportation, due to sharply reduced use of private automobiles, will require the buses and trolleys a year from now to carry at least 41 per cent of all persons moving in and out of downtown Atlanta, as compared with 33 per cent now and only 27 per cent a year ago. It is expected that the transit total will reach 60 per cent by 1944, if current conditions continue.

Automobiles, on the other hand, already have dropped from 50 per cent of the total a year ago to 43 per cent a month ago, when the cordon was made. It is estimated that a year from now only 33 per cent of the people will be riding downtown in autos, and this will drop to 24 per cent in 1944.

Rush-Hour Loads. A year ago the average rush-hour load of a street car seating 48 was 65 passengers. It has now grown to 67, and is expected to reach 76 a year from now, and 91, almost double seated capacity, two years from now.

With the benefits of staggered hours, however, engineers estimate that rush-hour loading will not exceed 67 passengers per street car next year and will be held to 72 passengers per street car the following year.

"In presenting a carefully worked out staggered hours plan for Atlanta," Mr. Wolf said, "the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce is in line with the trend of many other American cities which are taking a step that is a wartime necessity. We are confident that the plan will meet with the ready cooperation of every interest that is affected and of every citizen."

No New Equipment. "Joseph B. Eastman, the national director of defense transportation, has called upon all communities to solve their transportation problems on their own initiative. He has said that they cannot expect to obtain any considerable amount of new transit equipment, because the materials are vital to war production. He has recommended staggered hours as the first and most important step in solving our problems."

"Staggered hours will benefit us in more ways than one. It will simplify our transportation difficulties. It will speed up traffic. It should improve shopping conditions by distributing the buying peaks in the stores, and also by giving workers an extra half hour to shop in the afternoon. It should be of help to many other establishments, such as restaurants, which have their own rush-hour problems."

The plan was prepared by a subcommittee on engineering under the Chamber of Commerce traffic safety committee. It has been in the making for four months, and it is estimated that the equivalent of four and a half man-years of work has been expended on the project, including both the preliminary studies and the technical development of the program.

ROUNDTABLE. President Roosevelt's "Four Freedoms" will be discussed on the Georgia Tech radio program from 9:30 o'clock to 10 o'clock tonight over station WGST. Participants will be Devereaux McClatchey and Dr. Leroy Loomer.

'Great Activity' Reported Off Brazilian Coast

plans and Air Minister Joaquim Salgado Jr. returned from Recife, where he made a detailed inspection of air bases on the vulnerable Brazilian hump which juts toward Africa.

The news of the sinking of a submarine at Brazil's doorstep was withheld from publication in Brazil by the government, indicating the depth of the impression such news was likely to create here.

There have been frequent demonstrations against the Axis as a result of the sinking of Brazilian ships.

Identification Expected. The authorities at Recife expected the Argentine steamer Rio Iguaçu with its 53 unidentified survivors almost hourly.

The identity of the torpedoed ship presumably will be revealed when the survivors land, but latest reports said the Rio Iguaçu was still unsighted off Recife.

Maritime authorities doubted that the rescue ship would be allowed to enter the harbor if she arrived after nightfall except in a case of "serious emergency."

Authorities were cheered by the reports that the submarine had been sunk. The sinking followed repeated depredations by submarines in the South Atlantic.

Brazil has lost six ships with a total of 32,512 tons so far. From them, 127 crewmen and passengers are missing.

Commander Fuah Estrella, president of the Syndicate of Captains and Pilots of the Merchant Marine, said the attacks would not deter Brazilian sailors from going to sea.

"Morale Is Good." "Their morale is good," he said. "Naturally, it is a hard thing that the ships being attacked are without adequate defense, but we are sure this will come soon. Every Brazilian merchant sailor agrees that we must maintain the supply line to and from the United States."

The Brazilian government had word of the attack on the Commandante Lyra within a few minutes but withheld its announcement.

The damaged ship, which foundered and helped to safety by United States patrol vessels, was the first Brazilian vessel attacked in waters close to Brazil itself.

The other six Brazilian victims of undersea warfare were sunk considerably farther from home. News was scant on the sinking of the Axis submarine "by North American patrol planes" of Fortaleza, the capital of Ceara state in the northeast.

The submarine was spotted by a patrol plane which unloaded "all its bombs" on the U-boat in the face of gunfire from the deck of the submarine while it was clearing away in an attempt to submerge.

Three other patrol planes then

Doctors Urged To Volunteer, Or Be Drafted

10,000 Needed at Once, Fulton Physicians Are Told.

More than 300 Fulton county physicians sat politely attentive last night as they were warned if they neglected to accept Army commissions offered them, "your name will be reported."

There was no elaboration on this point, but the doctors understood that those who refused to volunteer by invitation would be drafted for duty if they came within the selective service ages.

Two arguments that have been advanced by physicians who believe the Army is overstaffed with doctors just now met these simple explanations:

1. Medical staffs in units are organized in expectation of battle casualties. Until those casualties occur in action, necessarily the units have a few more doctors than are needed.

2. No plan of state medicine is contemplated. The present Army system merely gives civilian doctors the opportunity of nominating their brethren for duty in the Army Medical Corps.

Needs 10,000 at Once.

"The Army needs 10,000 doctors immediately," said Lieutenant Colonel Bennett G. Owens, of the Army Medical Corps. "If enough doctors are not made available by our present plan, then the armed forces will have to take other steps to see that the soldiers get the proper medical attention."

The meeting at the new Fulton County Medical Center was attended by three-fourths of the members of the Fulton County Medical Society, the largest meeting the society has had in a long time.

Under the Army plan the Medical and Procurement Service, organized out of doctors in the area, passes on the qualifications of its own members. When that organization recommends a doctor who is available for service, he is given an opportunity to "enroll." If he fails to enroll, his name is reported to Washington.

Georgia and the Fourth Corps Area have excellent records for the percentage of doctors who have volunteered, said Colonel Owens.

"Organization Must Continue." "I have heard some doctors argue that the Army can't need men right now, because the Emory medical unit has not been called," said Colonel Owens. "I can only explain that there's a spot for the Emory unit—Base Hospital No. 43—and it will be notified on its M-Day. Until then, the organization of doctors for other units must continue."

Dr. Lyndon Hill, one of a group of Negro physicians attending the meeting, offered the aid of all the physicians of his race "100 per cent for the Stars and Stripes."

Doctors were told the usual rank of a qualified young doctor is a first lieutenant. Ranks higher than that can be awarded only by the Surgeon General's office on special application, taking seriously into consideration "maturity and ability."

Any graduate of a Class A medical school can get a commission, but he will not be ordered to active duty until he has served a year of internship.

Under the present plan of procuring and assigning physicians to duty with the armed forces, it was explained, the War Department has no right to select any doctor unless he has been recommended by his fellow doctors. Stories were stressed to show how carefully the selection was made so that no hardship would be imposed on any community.

Other speakers at the meeting were Dr. J. Edgar Paulin, Dr. Edgar H. Greene and Dr. W. A. Selman.

Sub-Debs Aid Home Defense By Becoming 'Mercy Angels'

By SALLY FORTH.

... COMING ON THE HEELS of Mrs. J. Carlisle Martin's appeal to Atlantans to take the Red Cross home nursing course is the heartening announcement of sub-debs who recently completed this important course. Mrs. Martin, you know, is the capable chairman of the home-nursing unit of the Atlanta Chapter of the Red Cross.

The belles, who are students at Washington Seminary and North Avenue School, tackled the course with such wholehearted enthusiasm that no grade fell below 90! Which is quite a record, don't you agree?

Mrs. Sam Kendrick was the volunteer instructor for the class held at N. A. P. S., and Mrs. Eustace Scarborough taught the Seminary girls. Classes were held every Saturday morning for 15 weeks, and pupils maintained a remarkable record of promptness and regularity of attendance.

Sally salutes the following for their splendid co-operation with America's home defense effort: Dorothy Belle Barge, Mary Callaway, Marguerite Emmert, Carolyn Evans, Lucia Fairlee, Jean Geiger, Dorothy Grove, Frances Grove, Jane Halley, Palmour Holmes, Alice Jackson, Jane Kallack, Jean Mathewson, Peggy Mee, Shirley Mullens, Joan Ringer, Eleanor Sauls, Mary Schumacher, Elodia Smith, Dorothy Spratlin, Rosanne Sprinkle, Jessie Strickland, Vee Swanson, Beverly Turner, Mary Upshaw, Jane Ward, Margaret Anderson, Natalie Barker, Joyce Berg, Amy Lou Bishop, Alice Clapp, Myrtle Durham, Nanelle Ellis, Ann Hinkle, Eleanor Holt, Margy Keene, Marcelle Lowenstein, Mary McCord, Marian Merts, Margaret Mizell, Vivian Newberry, Martha Rumble, Betty Grace Spinks, Betty Jane Williams and Gloria McCleskey.

... FRIENDS have suspected for several months that the courtship was altar-bound, but each time they questioned the petite blond bride-elect, she shook her head with a smile and sweetly denied the whole thing.

"The cat is out of the bag" now, however, and Sally has been let in on the secret. Here are a few hints:

The future bride is a native of Louisiana, and studied at the High Museum of Art. She is noted for her sweetness of manner and sparkling sense of humor. The groom-elect is a graduate of Georgia Tech. He has brown hair and blue eyes, and holds the rating of a lieutenant in Uncle Sam's Navy. The wedding is set for June.

Can you name them?

... PRETTY Pat Irwin, talented daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Harvey Irwin, is having a gay time in New York, where she is pursuing a career as advertising model for well-known firms. For instance, her graceful hands adorn a page of the current Harper's Bazar to illustrate some beautiful jewelry from Bergdorf-Goodman's New York store.

In addition to her busy days, Pat has time for other things, too, and last Friday served as a bridesmaid in the wedding of the former Joyce Pretzfelder to Reid Lighton, of New York, which was a fashionable event taking place at Calvary Episcopal church in St. Albans, L. I. The ceremony was followed by a reception at the Gramercy Park hotel in New York. Pat wore a flowing chartreuse chiffon and carried a huge bouquet of red geraniums. Joyce and Pat were schoolmates at National Cathedral School in Washington, D. C., and the former made a number of friends here when she came to Atlanta to attend Pat's formal presentation to society at a reception two years ago at the Capital City Club. Mrs. Irwin has just returned from New York, where she visited Pat for several weeks.

... DO YOU KNOW? ... That Addavale MacDougall, who is a senior at Washington Seminary this year, and her sister, Mary Alice, who is a junior, were co-hostesses at the junior-senior tea last week at the MacDougall home on Blackland road? ... That Betty (Mrs. Joe) Hamilton, who is secretary of the Converse College Alumnae Association, is going to the school reunion this week and will make her annual report? ... That when Ann Pappenheimer gave her cocktail party for Captain and Mrs. Grant LeRoux, mint juleps were served from a four-tiered cake of ice? ... That it is rumored that an Atlanta mother was so concerned about the whereabouts of her son in the Army that she hired a detective to trail him from camp to camp, and then to his sailing port? ... That Medora Field, the popular author of "Blood on Her Shoes," personalized her autographs in her book at the publication day tea given at Rich's? ... That Maibelle Dickey Barnett has furnished a room at the recreation center at Fort McPherson? ... That Josephine McDougall is working for her father, Dr. Calhoun McDougall? ... That Lane Winship, who is sponsor for the Friars' Club at Boys' High school, entertained the group at an old-fashioned barbecue at the Winship summer home at Tate last week? ... and that the club raises a $150 scholarship to send some needy boy to school every year? ... That the Joseph Winships have bought a mule and wagon to use at their summer home at Tate, since the gas rationing went into effect? ... That Washington Seminary graduation takes place at Georgia Tech? ... That the S. A. E. fraternity at Georgia won the trophy at the interfraternity swimming meet for the second consecutive year last week?

A profusion of colorful garden flowers adorned the reception rooms at the tea given yesterday by Mrs. Hugh H. Trotti at her home on Willow drive, in Decatur, for Miss Jacqueline Howard, whose engagement to Dr. William Thomas Edwards Jr., lieutenant U. S. N., was announced Sunday.

Mrs. William Schley Howard, mother of the honor guest, and Mrs. Hugh E. Wright, of Fayetteville, N. C., received with Mrs. Howard and the hostess.

Lee Savold Stops Nova On Technical Knockout

California Yogi Man Forced To Quit as Badly Cut Eye Brings in Towel.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(AP)—Lee Savold, the cocky Des Moines, Iowa, contender stepped a long way up the heavyweight ladder by scoring a technical knockout over California's Lou Nova in the eighth round of a scheduled 10-round bout here tonight.

Savold weighed 188 1-2, Nova 200 1-2.
Referee Charles Reynolds stopped the bout after eight rounds when Nova was bleeding badly from the eyes and nose. Although Nova had bled since the second round, it wasn't until the fifth that he showed signs of weakening.

Nova protested violently when the verdict was awarded to Savold, claiming he was able to continue. His left eye was examined after the eighth, however, and Reynolds ruled he would risk permanent injury by continuing the bout.

The California ex-Yogi man carried the bout to Savold with a furious assault in the opening frame, and continued to hold the advantage in the third, fourth and fifth largely because of superior boxing skill.

Savold, who needed the victory to gain a probable shot at Champion Joe Louis' crown, kept boring in—even when Nova had the upper hand at the infighting—and absorbed plenty of punishment before his straight rights to the face and hard lefts to the body sent Nova to the ropes repeatedly late in the fight.

On the Associated Press scorecard, each fighter was credited with four rounds, but Savold's damaging punches in the late heats decided the issue.

Red Wings Get Estel Crabtree
ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 25.—(AP)—Estel Crabtree, pinch-hitting outfielder for the St. Louis Cardinals and idol of the Rochester fans when he played with the Rochester Red Wings, will return here to manage the Cardinals-controlled club Wednesday, President Oliver French announced tonight.

Crabtree, who will succeed Tony Kaufmann as manager, was named manager here in 1940 but relinquished the post a week later because physicians told him he never would play ball again, but in 1941 his hard hitting played a prominent part in landing the injury-riddled Cardinals a second place. He will play center field here. Kaufmann will become a Cardinal scout.

Jenkins Kayoed By Fritzie Zivic
PITTSBURGH, May 25.—(AP)—Former welterweight Champion Fritzie Zivic, of Pittsburgh, slashed ex-Lightweight Champion Lew Jenkins, of Sweetwater, Texas, into a gory wreck tonight, winning by a technical knockout when a Pennsylvania Boxing commission doctor refused to allow the lean Texan to come out for the 10th and last round. Zivic weighed 144; Jenkins 138.

Pels Lose Jurisich To Rochester Club
NEW ORLEANS, May 25.—(AP)—The New Orleans Pelicans today sent Al Jurisich, righthanded pitcher, to Rochester of the International League, and obtained George Dockins, 25-year-old left-hander, on option from that club.

Ray Yochim, local boy, has been sent to Columbus, Ga., subject to option by the Houston Buffs.

Lieut. McArdle On Way to Athens
LOWELL, Mass., May 24.—(AP)—Miss Eleanor M. Sullivan and Lieutenant Joseph A. McArdle, U. S. N. R., former line coach at Boston College and Notre Dame University, were married today at St. Margaret's church.

The couple left for Athens, Ga., where Lieutenant McArdle, commissioned a week ago after completing an indoctrination course at Annapolis, will act as naval instructor at the University of Georgia.

Fred Fitzsimmons Stopped by Time
BROOKLYN, May 25.—(AP)—Time finally caught up with Fred Fitzsimmons today as the Brooklyn Dodgers handed him his unconditional release after 17 colorful years in the National League.

It was believed Fitz would be retained by the Dodgers as a coach, and the club disclosed that the veteran pitcher could confer with President Larry MacPhail tomorrow about such a contract. The Dodgers have asked him to sign for five or six thousand dollars less than the $12,000 salary he was to have drawn for pitching.

The curtain really closed on the great-hearted Irishman in the third game of last year's World Series when a savage lunge by Marius Russo struck his left leg.

Asks $750,000 For $50 Parcel, Wins Appeal

Ambitious Author Acts as Own Lawyer, Scores Victory.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(P)—An ambitious author, acting as his own lawyer, won a round in the supreme court today in a suit against the Railway Express Agency for failing to deliver a manuscript he sent to Robert Benchley under a trick address for what he termed a "build-up."

Robert L. Peyton, of Waco, Tex., wrote a book entitled "Male and Female" and sent it "To Mr. Robert Benchley, Address as He Is Well Known, Hollywood, Cal." Twenty-eight days later the express company returned it undelivered.

Peyton seeks $750,000 damages from the express company—$250,000 which he calculates the book would have brought at $2.50 a copy "for each of 100,000 copies usual and common in any good, not even best, seller"; $125,000 which he figures the stage, screen and radio rights would have brought, and then "double indemnity as exemplary damages for double charges both ways for no service." He also wants the company prosecuted criminally.

His express receipt contained a $50 valuation and the federal district court, on motion of the company, dismissed the suit on the ground that it could consider only cases involving more than $3,000; the circuit court of appeals upheld this dismissal.

After Peyton filed his appeal to the supreme court, however, attorneys for the express company said that they "find themselves in the embarrassing position" of acknowledging that the federal court did have jurisdiction. But they contended that the lower courts were correct in ruling that Peyton could recover no more than $50.

Peyton's reply brief—printed as impeccably as the company's but containing some unusual language—termed this stand of the company's counsel "a cheap trick" which "smells to high heaven." He said that his case "might as well be the test case to eliminate all such previous abuses and establish equity to and for all beyond the power of lower courts to misconstrue or alter, as well as set an example To this end he asked the supreme court to render judgment for him, or direct the lower court to do so.

The supreme court wouldn't go so far as that. It merely reversed the lower courts' dismissal of the case, and Peyton presumably can now proceed with the suit there.

MALTA DOWNS FIGHTER. VALLETTA, Malta, May 25.—(P)—An Axis fighter plane was destroyed and four other fighters and two bombers were damaged in raids over Malta today, a communiqué said. A German bomber and two Italian fighters were shot down Sunday.

'Bugs' Baer Says:

War production board is figuring on making tires out of alcohol. As an expert I can testify that if the stuff has the same effect on wheels that it has on my legs it will make very good rubber.

The formula for agricultural rubber is exactly the same as the recipe for Welsh rabbit. Except you don't salt to taste.

You add a bit of butadiene which gives traction and durability. And it will solve our tire problem if we can bend it.

Congress once voted on making rubber out of goldenrod. But the matter was dropped when the supreme court couldn't decide whether a sneeze was a negative or an affirmative.

Seven of Mayor Candidates Talk At Civic Meeting

All but two of the nine candidates for mayor last night entered the final lap before tomorrow's balloting to select a successor to former Mayor LeCraw by speaking at a meeting of the East Lake Civic Club, predicting their election and urging voters to give them the large majorities.

Avila Camacho Asks for War Against Axis

Ship Sinking, Rejection of Mexican Notes Denounced.

MEXICO CITY, May 25.—(AP) President Manuel Avila Camacho led Mexico a step nearer war against the Axis powers today with a call to congress to meet in extraordinary session and align the nation as a full-fledged belligerent at the side of the United Nations.

Only this congressional declaration—regarded as a foregone conclusion—stands between Mexico's entrance into the conflict; it is expected at a special "war session" Thursday.

The presidential message, which had full cabinet approval, was quickly and unanimously approved by the permanent congressional commission, which functions while congress is not in session.

Avila Camacho made three requests, for a formal declaration of war—the first such formal declaration in Mexican history—suspension of constitutional guarantees and emergency war powers.

It was understood that he would go into details of his requests in presenting them personally to the congressional session Thursday.

Avila Camacho in a preface to his requests bitterly denounced the Axis sinking of the Potrero Del Llano as an "unspeakable violation of the most rudimentary rights of peoples."

Then, he went on to say the Axis, "inspired with clear disdain for our rights as sovereign people," refused even to receive Mexico's note of protest "and subsequently renewed their treacherous and unlawful attitude, sinking another of our ships, the Faja de Oro, which was returning empty and in ballast from a northern neighbor mission."

Detachments of sailors and marines, under full equipment, marched through the capital during the day. One officer said that, like the army, these forces were under orders to patrol the city and guard important areas.

Mexican, Brazilian Officials To Confer

RIO DE JANEIRO, May 25.—(AP) — Mexican Ambassador Jose Maria Davila will confer tomorrow with Brazilian Foreign Minister Oswaldo Aranha on Mexico's cabinet decision to declare war on the Axis.

Davila said he had no indication of what the Brazilian reaction would be, adding that he was "only hopeful."

Mexico has lost two ships to Axis torpedoes and Brazil six, besides one which was torpedoed but managed to reach port with the aid of United States patrol vessels.

Clothing Lines Of Merchants Frozen by OPA

1942 Fall Styles Limited to Prices Charged Last Year.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(AP)—The Office of Price Administration ruled today that 1942 fall styles of women's and children's coats, suits, dresses, blouses and many other outerwear garments could not be sold by retailers, wholesalers or manufacturers at prices higher than those charged last season.

A special price order also forbade any seller of such merchandise from adding any lines of garments selling at higher prices than the highest-price line he handled last fall.

This provision, an innovation in price regulations, in effect "freezes" the lines a merchant may handle, except that he may add lower-cost lines without hindrance.

The price order fixes as the maximum for each seller the highest price charged by him for a garment of "substantially equal workmanship and quality" during the period July 1-September 30, 1941.

Savings in cloth affected by recent War Production Board orders will help manufacturers absorb increased costs of labor and materials and "still supply the consumer with a fully comparable garment at last year's price," Price Administrator Leon Henderson said.

Such savings are estimated at 5 to 15 per cent of the cloth going into each garment.

The OPA ruled that used tires and tubes which are not serviceable without repairs may not be sold at the ceiling price for undamaged or already repaired tires and tubes.

An amendment to the tire price order provides that the ceiling

Roosevelt Tells Congress WPA May Be Cut Out

Move Hinges on Expansion of Social Security System.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, estimating WPA would cost $339,767,000 and employ 400,000 persons in the 12 months beginning July 1, told congress today that the agency might be eliminated a year later if some expansion were made in the Social Security system.

Studies of necessary changes in the social security act already are under way, he said in a message, and recommendation will go to congress soon.

While Mr. Roosevelt did not disclose what social security changes he had in mind, in other quarters the idea was said to involve direct federal-state payments to needy persons under 65 years of age.

Today's estimate of WPA's needs in the new fiscal year represented a downward revision of a tentative figure of $465,000,000 included in the President's message to congress last January.

Bob Hope's Show Visits McPherson

Bob Hope and Jerry Colonna, radio comedians, and a host of other entertainers last night put on a show for the boys in khaki at the Fort McPherson reception center.

The show drew an audience of more than 2,000 persons, and was a rehearsal for the show which will be broadcast tonight from the Naval Reserve Aviation Base.

Besides Hope and Colonna, headliners included Frances Langford, songstress, and Skinnay Ennis and his orchestra. Bobby Jones, Atlanta's former king of golf, also was on the program.

Manufacturers' Group Refutes Profits Charge

CHICAGO, May 25.—(AP)—The National Association of Manufacturers tonight made public a report designed to refute any charges of industry "profiteering" on war contracts.

The brochure concluded that profit margins on gross business were narrower since 1930 than they were in the preceding decade chiefly because of the growing "tax burden," and added:

"Under the defense and war production programs, net profits before taxes have risen largely because the increased volume of business has reduced overhead costs per unit. However, direct costs, especially taxes, wages and raw materials, have been cutting into net profit margins."

Studies of necessary changes in the social security act already are under way, he said in a message, and recommendation will go to congress soon.

The study said the House Naval Affairs Committee issued a report which "led many to believe that the majority of contractors are reaping exorbitant profits." The association analyzed 1,907 completed Naval contracts and offered these findings:

Of 1,013 general contracts, the median profit was 6.9 per cent of cost but probably would be reduced to about 3.4 per cent after taxes had been deducted.

Of 717 contracts for aircraft, the median was 8 per cent before taxes for an estimated 4 per cent after taxes.

Of 115 ordnance contracts the median profit was 7 per cent of cost, but this would be cut to about 3.5 per cent by taxes.

Of 62 contracts for naval vessels, the median profit was 4.9 per cent but probable taxes would reduce it to 2.9 per cent.
